

Trinity College Foundation Studies – Feature for NST 19-10-05

Trinity College Foundation Studies at The University of Melbourne – Creative learning environment

The University of Melbourne established in 1853 is the second oldest university in Australia – a premier institution, which benchmarks itself against top international universities. As a Melbourne student, your learning experience is enhanced by access to internationally recognised researchers and teachers, including two Nobel Prize winners and numerous renowned staff across our faculties.

The University of Melbourne's graduates are keenly recruited by high profile employers from Australia and around the world. As a Melbourne student you have access to a wide range of innovative career and employment development programs and as a graduate you can expect to enjoy top employment outcomes. Graduates leave the university with skills and knowledge to ensure they remain abreast of the rapidly changing fields in which they will work. A Melbourne degree will provide you with the essential skills and knowledge for your life as a graduate in the global environment and will form the foundation for life-long learning. You can expect to complete your degree in a dynamic learning environment, which incorporates innovative multimedia in problem-based and inquiry-based learning. You will learn to study effectively in groups and to communicate knowledge in new ways and forms. You will also have the flexibility in choosing your subjects from a broad range of disciplines, or you may wish to combine courses to maximise your career potential and interest.

Entry into the University of Melbourne is extremely competitive and a secure pathway into the University is through the Trinity College Foundation Studies (TCFS) program which is located on the University of Melbourne campus. It is a unique pre-university program which qualifies overseas students for Australian university entrance. Students who achieve the required grades in TCFS are guaranteed places at the prestigious University of Melbourne. The TCFS program nurtures students' transition from school in their own country to university in Australia, both academically and culturally. Its special curriculum is designed, with the support of the University of Melbourne, to prepare international students for success – in their studies and beyond.

A significant number of parents from Malaysia have chosen the Trinity College Foundation Studies option for their children. Over 80% of Trinity graduates go on to further academic studies and have returned to Malaysia and built successful careers in various fields, a hallmark of a University of Melbourne graduate.

For applications and more information for February 2006 commencement, please contact JM Education Counselling Centre at : Tel 03-5633 4732; Fax 03-5634 1944 or email yvonne@jmecc.com.my or carrie@jmecc.com.my.

Students of Trinity College Foundation Studies